This is some bold text.

This is some italic text.

This is some text with emphasis.

Typographic advice : never use italic bold text or underline text in presentation ; also, tend to use the emphasis instead of italic or bold.

You can display some math blocks like this :

$$\mathcal{N}(x \mid \mu, \sigma) = \frac{1}{\sqrt{2\pi\sigma^2}} \exp \left\{ -\frac{(x - \mu)^2}{2\sigma^2} \right\},$$ or also write inline math like this : $f(x) = \mathcal{N}(x \mid \mu, \sigma)$.

We can use defined acronyms : their first appearance will feature their definition, such as “Let’s talk about Magnetic resonance imaging (MRI).”

Then, their following appearances will automatically be as acronyms : ”Let’s talk again about MRI.”

Here's a plain frame, without any title.

If you use the total frame number option, slides in the appendix won't be counted in the total frames number.
